Shiny is the new black when it comes to America's favorite car color

Chicago Tribune

Next time you're stuck in traffic, count the silver and gray cars on the road. Odds are, you'll see more than ever.

The popularity of silver and gray reached a record high this year, accounting for 31 percent of the 2010 model-year vehicles, according to PPG Industries, the Pittsburgh-based commercial coatings manufacturer. That is the highest level since PPG began tracking the data in 1990, and is up from 25 percent last year.

Although no one knows definitively why silver rates as the favorite car color, the economic downturn could have something to do with it, said Jane Harrington, manager of color styling at PPG offices in Troy, Mich., where PPG is holding its Automotive Color Trend Show.

"A car is the largest purchase most people make, after their house," Harrington said. "And silver is a safe choice."

It also doesn't hurt that silver and gray cars can go for weeks, even months, without a washing and still look clean.

As the economy improves, silver may face a challenger. Green, which topped the charts in the 1990s, may be poised for a comeback.

In 1994, green was the color of 21 percent of the vehicles in North America, compared with 8 percent silver. Now, thanks to the green movement, the color is making a comeback.

"Consumers are aware of environmental responsibility," Harrington said. "And they associate the color green with the environment."

Shades of green already are showing up on hybrid cars. And more buildings are relying on the color to convey their eco-friendly leanings.

Mexican tourism

In a surprising turnaround, international tourism to Mexico showed a sharp increase this summer—a sign that tourists may be putting aside worries about the economy and fears of drug-related violence, analysts say. Here is a look at the numbers. LOS ANGELES TIMES

7.1 million

Foreign visitors arriving by air to Mexico jumped to 7.1 million in the first eight months of the year—up nearly 20 percent from the same period in 2009, Mexican tourism officials said.

31%

The number of visitors to Cancun, the easternmost coastal city, jumped nearly 31 percent compared with a year earlier; tourism to Los Cabos, on the tip of Baja California, increased 30 percent.

27.5%

The biggest rise came in July, when tourist numbers grew 27.5 percent over the same month last year.

City's embrace has never been warmer

This past week, after being gone for more than three months of Euro-tripping, book-touring and Gulf-of-Mexico-exploring, I finally arrived back in Chicago.

Lord, am I glad to be back.

Everything here seems brighter than I remember: The Bean is shinier, Bears fans are happier, and the girls out at 4 a.m. in Big City Tap are cuter (the guys, however, still look like a combination of vagrants and parolees).

Not to mention, have you seen what's going on outside of Chicago? It is not pretty. We're lucky we have a thousand-mile buffer between us and any other city of note because the rest of this country is out of its mother-loving mind.

I spent a month in New York, where a gubernatorial candidate's main preoccupation is defending his penchant for e-mailing bestiality pictures to all his friends.

If he gets elected, we should start a program to allow New York refugees to crash on our couches for the next four years. We ask only that they each buy us one beer at Old Town Ale House. (No Pabst!) Your governor will be into bestiality: You owe us an expensive beer).

I won't lie, though. The best part about being gone for three months is that your friends suddenly can't wait to see you again. People I couldn't get to answer my phone calls in June suddenly can't wait to hang out.

It's kind of like when a character leaves from a hit sitcom to pursue better opportunities, and the show's never quite the same. You know what I'm talking about? In my case, I feel very much like Jonathan Taylor Thomas when he left "Home Improvement."

Now that I'm back in Chicago, it's as if I (Randy) suddenly decided to return, single-handedly restoring the show to glory because various friends of mine such as Brian (Tim "The Toolman" Taylor), Pat (Wilson) and Ashley (Al Borland) are reinvigorated by an adrenaline rush of JTT.

Perhaps I'm taking that analogy dangerously far—first by admitting I watched "Home Improvement," and second by admitting I stopped watching when JTT left.

Still, my point remains that absence makes the heart grow fonder. This will help me exist in a brief state of unemployed flux while my friend Bojo (Heidi, the Toolgirl) lets me sleep on his couch just because he's so glad to see me.

I will never again take for granted living in this awesome city. I will cherish it. I'll dance and sing and frolic around its marvelous streets, all the way from Andersonville to Hyde Park.

Well, at least until the temperature drops below zero and living in Chicago is like doing battle with a Tolkien wind monster you can't catch. Then I don't care if my next-door neighbor turns out to be the bestiality guy—I'm moving to Key West.

Warm weather stings marathoners again—will organizers move future race dates?

Chicago Tribune

Despite temperatures that climbed into the 80s on Sunday, organizers for the Bank of America Chicago Marathon said the race was uneventful and they were non-committal about whether they would consider moving it to another date.

Carey Pinkowski, executive race director, said a record 38,132 runners started the race. It was the third time in the past four years temperatures soared during the marathon's traditional Columbus Day weekend schedule.

The course this year featured six more aid stations than in 2007, and race planners adopted a colored warning system for runners.

About 65 runners were taken to area hospitals for heat-related and "typical marathon-type" issues, on par with the percentage of runners in a typical year, said Medical Director George Chiampas at a post-race news conference.

It was the warmest weather for a Chicago marathon since 2007, when temperatures reached nearly 90 degrees with high humidity and the course was closed after three and a half hours to those who had not reached the halfway point.

But not everyone was concerned about the heat. For Chicagoan Sue McGrath, there was no better day to run her first marathon.

"It's 10-10-10, what better day to do it than today?" McGrath said in reference to the Oct. 10, 2010, date as she walked to the starting corrals around 7 a.m.

One difference between Sunday's race and the heat disaster of 2007, though, was humidity and dew point. The humidity was considerably higher in 2007, when some 300-plus runners were treated for heat problems. That year, a runner also died of a heart-related ailment.

On Sunday, elite runners finished the course before 9:30 a.m., when officials first raised the hazard level on the event's color-coded warning system from green—for "good conditions"—to yellow, for "less than ideal conditions."

Shortly before noon, the level was raised again to red for "potentially dangerous conditions" as temperatures spiked before declining during the afternoon, Chiampas said.

According to the marathon's recommended actions for those kinds of conditions, runners are asked to "slow down, observe course changes, follow event official instruction and consider stopping."

As temperatures climbed, runners began to fall. By 11:30 a.m., near-80-degree temperatures and plain exhaustion had begun to claim runners at the medical station near mile 20 in Pilsen—regarded by many marathoners a point of no return for fatigue.

"I started to feel nauseous and I thought, I want to see my grandkids, I better stop," Nancy Schrader, a 56-year-old from Indianapolis, said as she sat behind the aid tent.

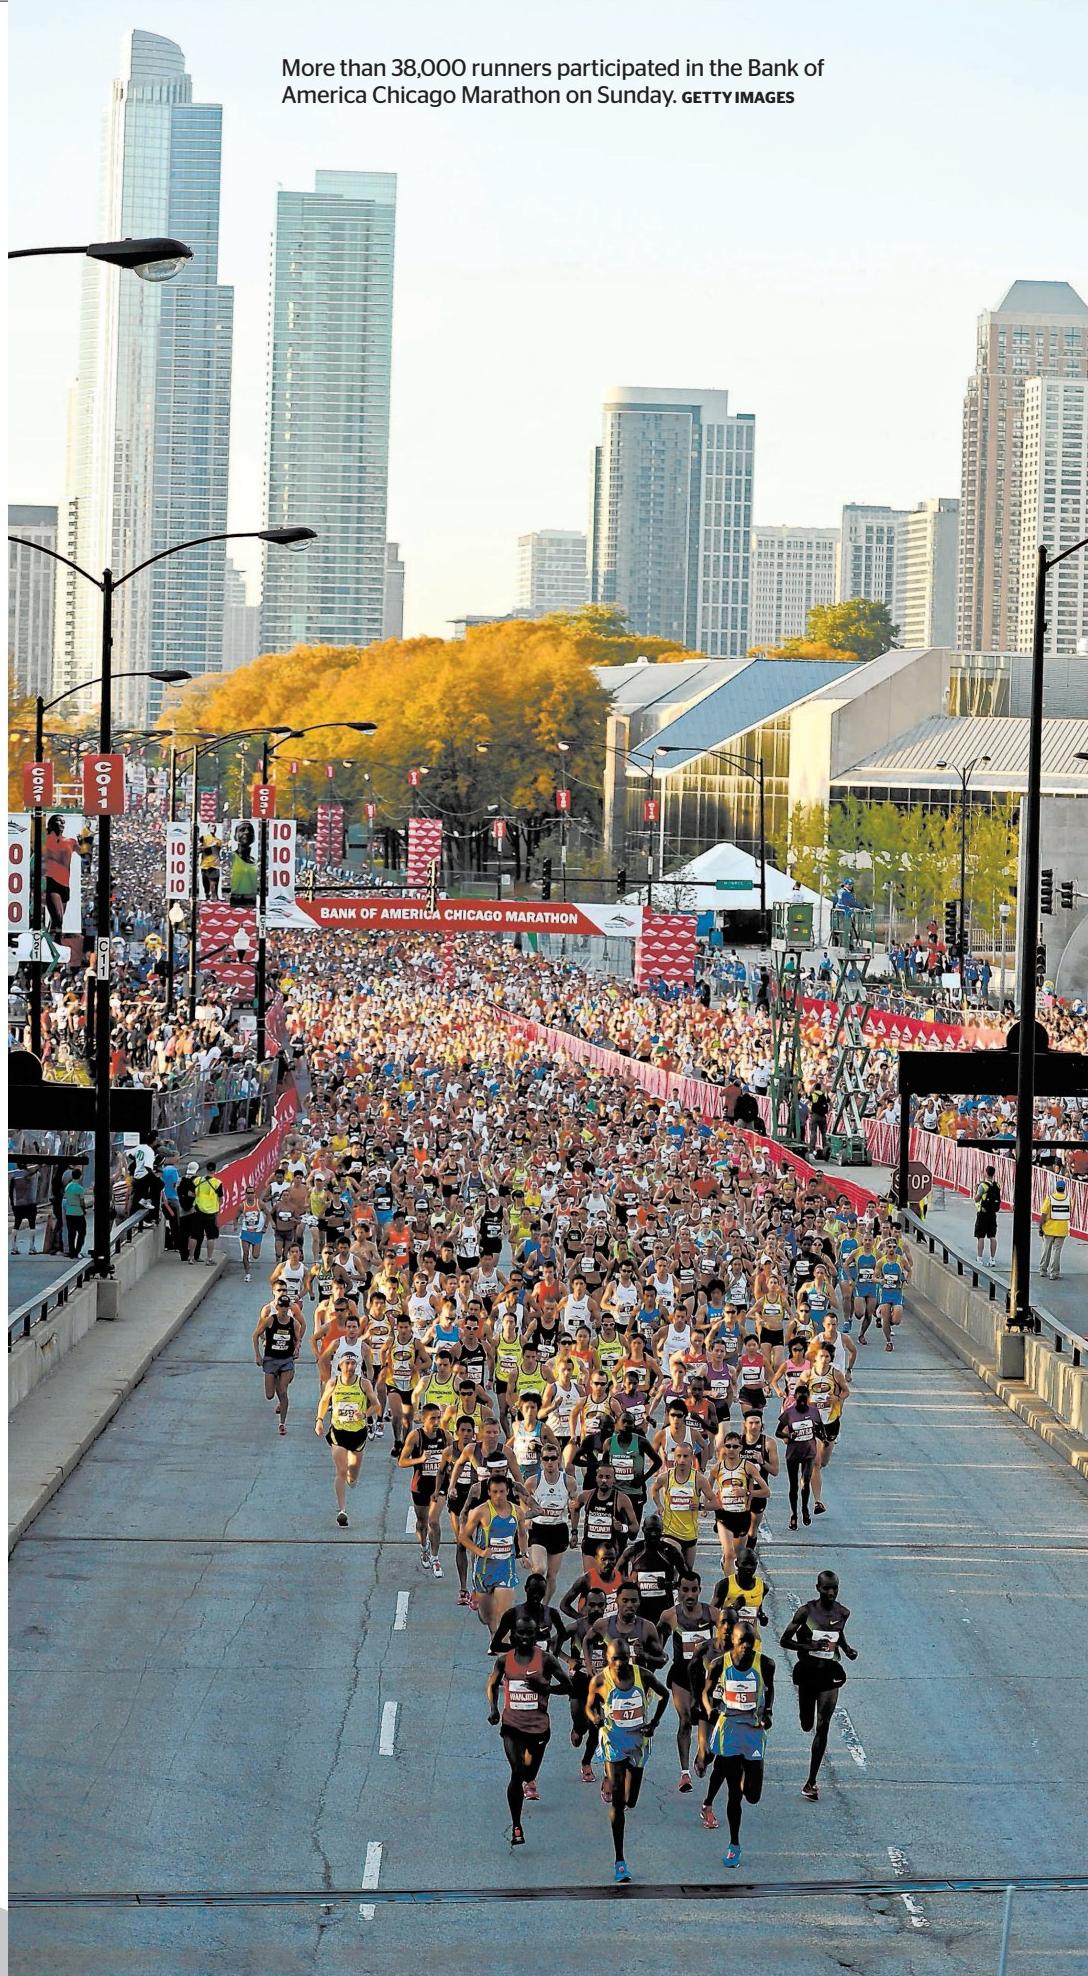

Schrader blamed her symptoms on bronchitis medication and said she intended to finish the race at a walking pace. Schrader, who has run two other marathons, said there was a factor unique to Chicago that might have contributed.

"Other places, you see gaps [in the crowd along the race], and you say, 'OK, I'll walk there,'" she said. "Here there are no gaps. It's all people."

Winners hit repeat button

Chicago Tribune

In a stunning mano-a-mano battle, Sammy Wanjiru of Kenya outran Tsegaye Kebede of Ethiopia in the final half-mile Sunday to win a second straight Bank of America Chicago Marathon.

Wanjiru made three moves against Kebede, the last finally breaking his Ethiopian rival as he won by 19 seconds in 2 hours, 6 minutes, 24 seconds.

The victory likely was worth $615,000 to Wanjiru, the 2008 Olympic champion.

That includes $75,000 for winning, a $40,000 time bonus and $500,000 as winner of the 2009-10 World Marathon Majors trophy. Wanjiru will get the last payoff unless Kebede makes the unlikely decision to run the New York Marathon four weeks from now and finishes first or second.

The temperature had risen to 73 degrees when Russia's Liliya Shobukhova won her second straight title, giving Chicago back-to-back men's and women's titles for the first time since the race began in 1977. Astede Baysa of Ethiopia was second, more than three minutes behind.

Shobukhova clinched the $500,000 as World Marathon Majors champion. She also got $75,000 for the win and a $40,000 time bonus for her winning time.

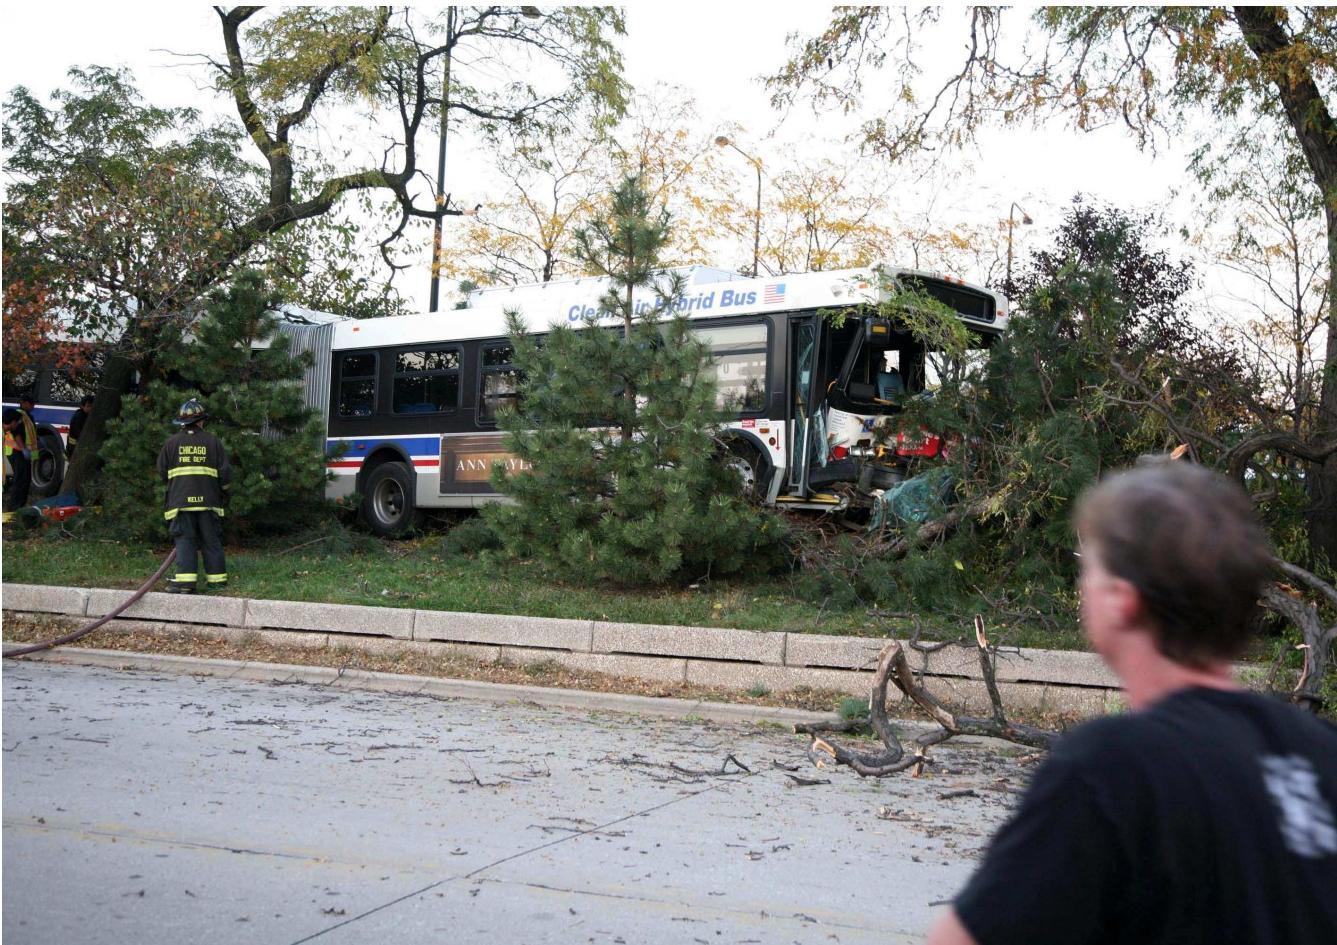

Shobukhova's time, 2:20:25, was the fastest in the world in two years, making her the 10th-fastest woman in history and breaking the Russian record of 2:20:47 that Galina Bogomolova of Russia set in Chicago four years ago.

"I don't even believe I have all this money," Shobukhova said.

Wanjiru, 23, had been bothered by a knee injury that made his participation in the race uncertain until recently. He had dropped out of April's London Marathon after 16 miles.

Jason Hartmann, 29, of Rockford, Mich., was the top U.S. men's finisher, taking eighth place in a personal record 2:11:06. Californian Desiree Davila, who trains in Michigan, took fourth for the women in 2:26:20, making her the fourth-fastest U.S. runner in history.

A bus crash Saturday on South Lake Shore Drive resulted in 37 people being hospitalized. ERIC CLARK/TRIBUNE

CTA investigating cause of bus crash

Chicago Tribune

CTA officials said Sunday they were continuing to investigate a bus crash Saturday evening that sent 37 people to area hospitals.

The accident happened about 6 p.m. when the bus ran off Lake Shore Drive just south of Interstate 55 and then struck a tree, officials said.

Officials were in the process of investigating the cause of the accident, CTA spokeswoman Catherine Hosinski said Sunday.

Before investigators could determine a cause of the accident, they had to investigate that the bus was in proper working condition, review surveillance video and a "black box" device inside the bus. They also have to conduct interviews to determine what transpired, Hosinski said.

More than 20 ambulances were sent to the scene of the accident, in the southbound lanes at about 2800 S. Lake Shore Drive, officials said. Earlier estimates had indicated that 30 people were taken to hospitals.

The No. 6 Jackson Park Express articulated bus was described as being full at the time of the crash.

CTA buses have been involved in more collisions annually since 2008 than buses operated by the nine other largest public bus systems in the U.S., according to records compiled for the Tribune by the Federal Transit Administration. The accident rate since 2002 reflects a bus incident occurring almost every day on average.

The CTA has placed fourth, fifth or sixth in federal collision-rate rankings since 2002 compared with other large bus transit agencies.

Last year, there were 271 "reportable collisions" involving CTA buses, according to records. But those are only the accidents resulting in $25,000 or more in property damage or at least one individual taken to a hospital, which is the criteria set by the Federal Transit Administration.

In 2008, CTA buses were involved in 303 reportable collisions.

White Sox fan sues over faulty tattoo

Chicago Tribune

Eugenia Bebis, a self-described die-hard White Sox fan, wanted a permanent reminder of her South Sider pride—in the form of a tattoo.

In June, Bebis visited Mystic Tattoo Art and Body Piercing Corp. in Cragin and explained to the tattoo artist, Micah St. John, what it was she wanted: the black logo as a focal point, surrounded by purple clovers on her left thigh.

Some might say that Bebis, a student at the University of Illinois at Chicago, got exactly the opposite of what she wanted. According to a lawsuit filed in Cook County Circuit Court this week, St. John inked the permanent art backward—the letters face to the left rather than to the right.

Bebis, of Elmwood Park, is undergoing laser treatment to lessen the appearance of the tattoo. The suit seeks damages not exceeding $50,000.

Town evacuated ahead of expected sludge flood

1 KOLONTAR, Hungary Residents were evacuated and soldiers were on standby Sunday as authorities believe a damaged reservoir wall may unleash a second wave of toxic sludge onto a Hungarian village, an official said.

The cracked wall is expected to collapse, Gyorgi Tottos, spokeswoman for Hungary's Catastrophe Protection Directorate, told CNN on Sunday. "We know that it will happen," she said, although when is unknown.

Some 8,000 people have been evacuated from the village of Kolontar, leaving it essentially empty, she said. Hundreds of soldiers were at the ready to rescue inhabitants of a nearby village when the wall collapses.

A 19-inch crack has developed in the wall of the aluminum plant reservoir. If the wall collapses, 500,000 cubic yards of toxic red sludge could spill out. That's about half the amount that spilled Oct. 4, inundating Kolontar and two other villages. Seven people were killed and more than 100 injured.

Hungary's state-owned MTI news agency quoted Zoltan Illes, state secretary of environment, as saying the damaged wall could not be saved. Specialists had tried to reinforce the wall Saturday.

Hungarian Prime Minister Viktor Orban, who was visiting the stricken area Saturday, said it was "very likely" the reservoir wall will collapse.

"It's in very bad shape, and our estimation is that that wall could fall down," Orban told reporters in the town of Ajka. "One consequence is that human lives could be in danger. That's the reason why we pulled out ... all human lives from that area, in order not to have more loss in human life."

BEARS DUST OFF RUNNING GAME EN ROUTE TO FOURTH WIN

Chicago Tribune

CHARLOTTE, N.C. The Bears didn't figure Jimmy Clausen posed much of a threat to them Sunday, provided they bottled up talented Panthers running backs DeAngelo Williams and Jonathan Stewart with a new-look defense spearheaded by Julius Peppers.

But the Bears had no idea how they would fare with their own untested quarterback, Todd Collins. With Jay Cutler sitting out with a concussion, it turned out to be a rough day all around for quarterbacks as both teams yanked their starters and neither team managed to pass for 100 yards.

It won't be remembered for anything aesthetically, but the Bears' 23-6 victory at Bank of America Stadium did prove to be the boost they needed. They defeated winless Carolina (0-5) to improve to 4-1 and piled up 218 yards rushing, maybe giving a patchwork offensive line some confidence following the team's biggest day rushing in two decades.

"We knew we had to run the ball to win," center Olin Kreutz said. "We knew what our defense was capable of against these guys. With a young quarterback it is always hard going against a great defense like we have so we wanted to run the ball, we wanted to shorten to the game."

A week after a disaster at New Meadowlands Stadium, things are looking up even if doubters remain. Against the untested Clausen, the Bears went off as a three-point underdog, a fact that didn't go unnoticed.

"To come in on the road, you're a 3-1 team and you're underdogs is kind of a slap in the face," coach Lovie Smith said. "But again we're going to be in tough situations like that. It's good to see the guys get it done. That has to give us more confidence."

The defense throttled Clausen with five sacks, three attributed to Israel Idonije. The only throws he looked sure about making were the times he threw the ball out of bounds. He finished 9-of-22 for 61 yards.

Daniel Manning's 62-yard kickoff return gave the Bears a short field to start the game and Matt Forte quickly scored on an 18-yard run around the left side. After the Panthers drove 55 yards for a field goal, the Bears responded as Forte raced 68 yards for a touchdown on the next play from scrimmage, the longest rush of his career.

It was all the cushion the Bears needed as the Panthers mustered just 95 yards of offense the rest of the game.

Forte finished with a career-high 166 yards on 22 carries and Chester Taylor got his most extensive work, adding 43 yards on 18 carries. The 218 yards were the most by the Bears since they had 223 against Phoenix on Oct. 28, 1990.

Collins was awful and threw four interceptions while finishing with a 6.2 passer rating.

He completed six of 16 passes for 32 yards. He was replaced by Hanie late in the third quarter and the offense produced two more Gould field goals.

Packers hurting

I'm sure this will break the hearts of Bears fans all over town, but Green Bay suffered more than just a loss Sunday—a loss that enabled the Bears to take over first place in the NFC North, even. The Packers lost dependable tight end Jermichael Finley, his replacement Donald Lee and defensive wizard Clay Matthews to injury Sunday. As if that weren't enough, the team confirmed quarterback Aaron Rodgers suffered a concussion during the game, but they wouldn't say when. Dry your eyes, Bears fans, dry your eyes.

The good, the bad, and the ugly this week in the NFL.

OH YES!

Shaun Hill

Your eyes do not deceive you: a Detroit Lion played like a stud. Quarterback Hill helped the Lions snap their 10-game losing streak, throwing for 227 yards with three touchdowns.

OH NO!

Matt Cassel

Kansas City's quarterback is a good reason the Chiefs are no longer undefeated. He was 16-of-29 for 156 yards with no touchdowns. His decision-making also was questionable on a few key plays.

UH-OH!

Mark Clayton

The St. Louis wide receiver was lost for the season with a knee injury, the St. Louis Post-Dispatch reported. He entered the game tied for fourth in the NFC with 22 receptions.

Favre facing suspension?

In even more news that will disturb Bears fans, espn.com reported Minnesota Vikings quarterback Brett Favre faces a possible suspension as the NFL investigates allegations that he sent inappropriate messages and photos to a former N.Y. Jets employee, according to a source familiar with the league's review. If a suspension is warranted, it will occur as soon as possible.

The Bears face Minnesota on Nov. 14, by the way.

bear hunting

Good Bears, bad Bears and Bears who went down this week.

YUMMI BEAR

Matt Forte

Forte was the best player on the field Sunday. He had two terrific touchdown runs in the first quarter. He also finished as the leading receiver.

POO BEAR

Todd Collins

The backup to Jay Cutler looked lost. He threw four interceptions, many other poor passes and finished 6-of-16 for 32 yards.

GRISLY BEAR

Lance Briggs

The linebacker left the game late in the third with an ankle injury. Brian Urlacher took over for him.

1 Where does running a marathon rank among sports accomplishments?	Just below mixed martial arts. You may hit the wall but at least the wall doesn't hit back.	Right up there with hitting for the cycle and sending wang pics to FSU grads. Prood of you, Jenn!	When Marathon Missfit Connie Reyes completes one, it's among the greatest.	Runners accomplished more than Todd Collins. Even the ones who finished in six hours!	It's the hardest feat in sports. LOL. I made a funny.
2 What do Chicago sports have in common with a marathon?	Bobby Jenks. Carbo-loading.	More like the seasons: It starts when its cold, feels like it takes forever and hurts like hell when you're done.	Just like when my friends run in them, it's exhausting to watch them finish.	Halfway through the marathon and Cubs season, you can't wait for it to end. And of course ... bloody nipples.	There's always a big mess to clean up when it's over.
3 What was the silver lining to Todd Collins starting Sunday's Bears game?	That's silver paint from all those Panthers helmets hitting him.	Three words: He. Didn't. Pass.	There was none. He gave me a headache of Jay Cutler proportions.	None. Even his text message picture to Jenn Sterger was intercepted.	Matt Forte was allowed to run again.
4 How close to pushing the Blackhawks panic button are you?	My bad, I thought this was the Easy button.	They've played what, two games? Why would people freak out? Oh wait, Chicago sports fans—never mind.	Heck, I've pushed the button, pulled the lever and shot up the emergency flare!	I'm getting close. We should trade Turco for Carmelo.	Sorry, I'm not allowed to play video games yet.
5 What do you have to say to Bryan Bickell?	"How do you like this nickname: Bickell Juice?"	Other than "who are you?" you mean?	"Nice ring. Now go buy me a lottery ticket."	"Good start! Now just keep your shirt on during limo rides."	"Nice sweater. Where'd you get it?"

Turco stays positive

Veteran undaunted despite two losses to begin season

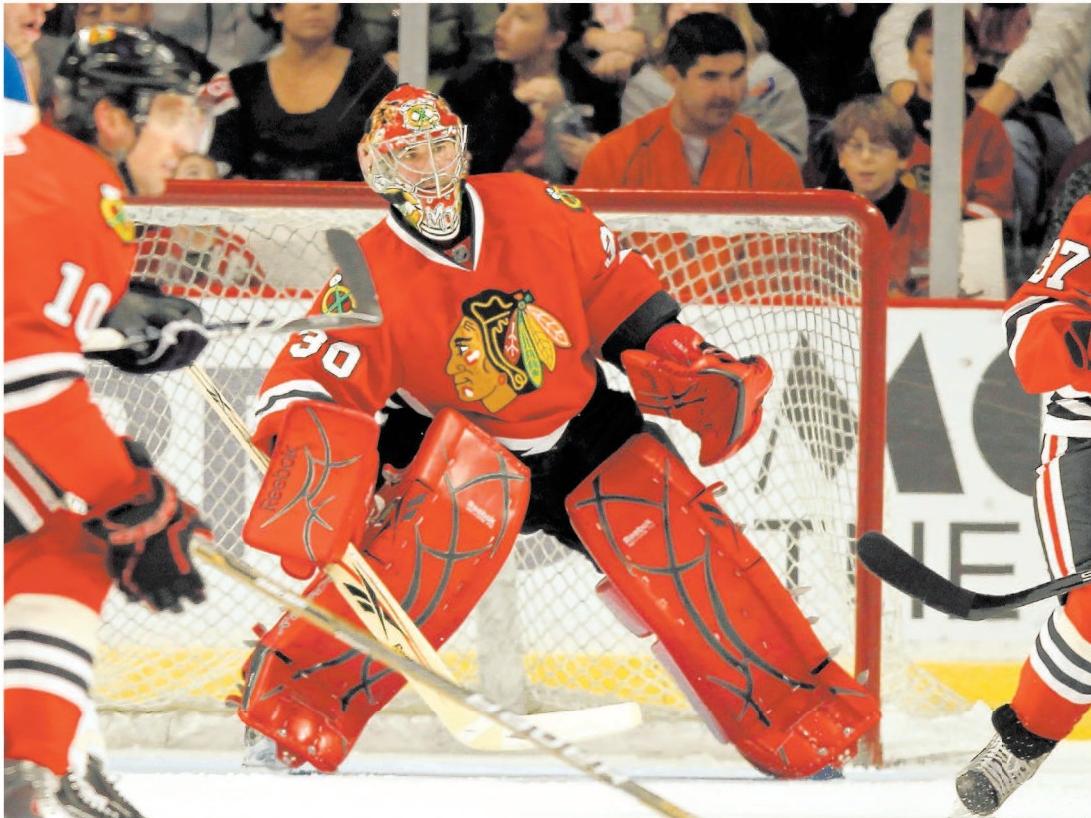

Playing in his 10th NHL season, Marty Turco isn't going to let losses in his first two games with the Blackhawks shake his confidence.

The 35-year-old has yielded seven goals thus far in a pair of one-goal defeats as the Hawks have earned one point to open defense of their Stanley Cup championship. It's not exactly the start he envisioned after signing with the Hawks as a free agent during the summer to replace Antti Niemi as the No. 1 goaltender.

"You go home and lie in bed and think about it and you always replay stuff," said Turco, who has 67 saves and an .896 save percentage. "The idea is just to get better. I've played long enough and been in this position to put it behind you pretty quickly because anytime you let things eat at you, it's going to hurt your focus. Especially in the position I occupy."

Despite the losses and the 3.50 goals-against average, Turco, who is expected to get the start Monday night against the Sabres in Buffalo, sees positives in his game.

"If I could just take a step back and look at everything, the game's pretty good," Turco said. "I'm there, I'm square and I'm seeing it well. A lot of the goals, obviously, I can't have them all. The shots aren't beating me and I don't feel like I'm fighting the puck or not ... moving well."

Blackhawks starting goaltender Marty Turco has stopped 67 of the 74 shots he's faced this season.

Roll in the hay

Cozy up to these 5 fall dates in the city

By Greg Walker

Got the fall date bug? If visions of apple orchards and pumpkin patches make you feel all warm and cuddly—but trekking to the 'burbs isn't in the plans—pluck a date from these fall-centric suggestions in the city.

From sipping a hot toddy to mingling with cornstalks, there's a date for you and your sweetie whether you've been dating for years or you're venturing out together for the first time.

Harry's Pumpkin Patch at Harry Caray's Tavern
CHUAND.VO PHOTOS FOR METROMIX

Pumpkin patch grazing

*Harry Caray's Tavern,
700 E. Grand Ave. 312-527-9700*

Date level: Festive

Forget grocery store pumpkins. Head to Navy Pier throughout October to choose gourds among cornstalks, scarecrows and hay bales at Harry's Pumpkin Patch on the patio. Pumpkins are $3 if you eat at Harry Caray's; $6 if you don't. Give the outing an adult spin with a mug of spiked apple cider ($8.50 each) or Halloween martini ($8, left).

Make a date: 11 a.m.-5 p.m. Saturdays and Sundays

Urban apple picking

Wicker Park & Bucktown Farmers Market, 1500 N. Damen Ave.

Date level: Fresh

Get truly seasonal and take your date on a midmorning farmers market stroll. Grab a few fresh apples and some fall flowers (for bonus date points), then walk over to 'hood restaurant The Southern (1840 W. North Ave. 773-342-1840) for its popular weekend brunch starting at 11 a.m. Keep the theme with apple- and almond-filled doughnuts ($9).

Make a date: 8 a.m.-2 p.m. Sundays. Through Oct. 24.

Foodie teamwork

*The Wooden Spoon,
5047 N. Clark St. 773-293-3190*

Date level: Cookin'

Sign up for Couples' Cooking: Falling Leaves ($65 per person) and learn to make three fall-inspired dishes: Caesar salad with pancetta, cheddar-stuffed grilled pork chops and pumpkin cupcakes. By the time you're done with this hands-on class, you'll have no excuse not to create a romantic three-course dinner at home. BYO wine to loosen things up.

Make a date: 6:30 p.m. Oct. 22

Fireplace-side snuggling

*Beckett's Public House,
3210 N. Lincoln Ave. 773-880-9620*

Date level: Hot

Take fall's balmy weather to the next level and snap up a chair beside Beckett's cozy fireplace and sip on a hot toddy, peppermint hot chocolate (peppermint schnapps and coffee) or Nutty Irishman ($6 each). As the weather gets colder, expect fireplace seats to fill up fast, so make early dinner plans and stake out a spot.

Make a date: Chilly evenings, when the fireplace is most likely to be roaring

Pumpkin trimming

*Pippin's Tavern,
806 N. Rush St. 312-787-5435*

Date level: Big-hearted

Show off your artistic skills during Pumpkins With a Purpose, a weekly pumpkin-painting contest at the River North tavern. Art is judged via texts through October, and the winner gets a year subscription to Netflix. Want to really impress your date? Bring a new, unwrapped toy for the Children's Memorial Hospital Toy Drive and receive a Pippin's gift certificate for a second date.

Make a date: Thursdays in October

HAPPY BIRTHDAY!

Libra

Sept. 23-Oct. 23

You're being invited to a lot of places, and you could have problems sifting through this avalanche of invitations. Do you attend the bachelor party with the stripper or do you visit your grandma in the nursing home on her 100th birthday? Decisions, decisions.

Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 21

Be open to your lover's suggestions, even if they sound controversial. Venus is reminding you that you always should remain a student of sexuality and be open to new ideas. Don't think that you're the master of sensuality when you still have a lot to learn.

Sagittarius Nov. 22-Dec. 21

You hate to share your partners, but sometimes you have to. Maybe your honey has an ex-spouse, and he shares custody of his kids. Or perhaps your lady friend still is close friends with a former flame. Saturn says you need to deal with reality.

Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 19

You need to be more realistic. The moon is reminding you that it isn't smart to remain friends with an ex who kidnapped your cat or stole your DVD player. Don't let loneliness spur you into making bad decisions about your personal life.

Aquarius Jan. 20-Feb. 18

A frisky moon has you contemplating taking several lovers at once. You're in the mood to sample a bunch of wares instead of chowing down on just one sexual meal. Just make sure your plaything understands what you're doing.

Pisces Feb. 19-March 20

Psychic Venus is reminding you that you have stupendous sexual powers. You're seducing someone long distance through your provocative text messages or e-mails. Or you're luring someone away from their abusive or annoying spouse with your animal magnetism.

Aries March 21-April 19

The love of your life has decided to elope with your college roommate. The sun is testing you in the romantic department. Despite your worst fears, you will survive this test. Probably.

Taurus April 20-May 20

Group situations might freak you out, courtesy of Pluto. Your steady boyfriend invited you out on date, only he never told you he was taking you to an orgy. You were counting on some private time with your girl, but she's having a sex toy party with her girlfriends.

Gemini May 21-June 21

Your significant other will make an intimate confession as Mercury kicks up the honesty factor. He'll admit that he once shoplifted a dozen bagels. She'll tell you that she has sexual fantasies about Justin Bieber. Just cover your ears.

Cancer June 22-July 22

A moon opposition has you wondering if the grass is greener on the other side of the fence. Your honey of the moment is perfectly fine, but you're longing for perfect. Dream on, kid.

Leo July 23-Aug. 22

You're installing better quality-control mechanisms into your dating standards. The moon is reminding you that there's a certain point where weird becomes psycho or "eccentric" becomes "creepy." Be honest with yourself about this.

Virgo Aug. 23-Sept. 22

Moody Venus has you realizing that you need more orgasms or more back rubs. You're not content with what your lover is giving you. Before you pitch a hissy fit, remember that communicating your needs sometimes works.

GOT A TIP?

Do you have a hot tip on a celebrity sighting in Chicago? E-mail Luis or tweet him @luisarroyave.

Bocanegra left the Fire to play for Fulham in the highly competitive English Premier League in 2004 and now plays for France's Saint-Etienne.

In July, Bocanegra and several of his U.S. teammates attended the ESPYs, ESPN's version of the Oscars, in L.A.

"Some of the athletes made it a point to find us and congratulate us," Bocanegra said. "We were in the athlete lounge and [Tennessee Titans running back] Chris Johnson came over and said, 'Congrats guys. Let's take a picture together.' Chris Johnson—that's the last guy I would think knows who the hell we are."

"We felt like we were part of the group at this ESPYs. We felt like we were on the same level as the other athletes. That's a nice feeling."

SIGHTINGS

» Forest Whitaker hung out Saturday at Cuvee and the Underground after accepting the Career Achievement award at the Chicago International Film Festival. Edward Norton, who kicked off the festival with a screening of his film, "Stone," hit Cuvee on Friday.

» Patrick Kane and Scottie Pippen dined separately Friday at Joe's Seafood, Prime Steak & Stone Crab. Kane and teammate Duncan Keith watched "Monday Night Football" on Oct. 4 at Bull & Bear.

» Jennifer Hudson performed "I Will Always Love You" on Tuesday at Michigan Avenue magazine's two-year anniversary party at the House of Blues. White Sox General Manager Kenny Williams was in attendance.

» Carlos Bocanegra had dinner with teammates Tuesday at Japonais. The former Fire defender dined with teammates at N9NE Steakhouse the previous night. The Blackhawks' Marian Hossa ate Tuesday at N9NE.

» The Blackhawks' Troy Brouwer brought the Stanley Cup to The Fifty/50 on Oct. 3 during the Bears-New York Giants game. White Sox pitcher Edwin Jackson watched football at Timothy O'Toole's that day.

» "CSI: NY" actor A.J. Buckley and "Eurotrip" actor Travis Wester had dinner and drinks Friday at Hub 51.

Al Piemonte Ford offers travel incentive.

To make it more affordable for shoppers to meet face to face with Al Piemonte Ford's credit department, the dealership has added a gift card incentive. Now customers who visit the Credit Department will be rewarded with a $10 Target Gift Card.

Finance personnel will be on hand to meet with them and access their ability to get financing for a new or used vehicle. Ed Dixon, "The Credit Coach" from the dealership, sees this as another step in making the customer experience "friendly and inviting".

"We recognize that sometimes people travel a considerable distance to come to our dealership and we want to reward them for their effort!"

Ed Dixon "Credit Coach"

Shoppers can start the process by calling a 24 hour toll free number dedicated to financing. The number is 1-800-NEXT CREDIT or 1-800-639-8273.

Extended Service Hours Announced

Life just got easier for customers who need to service their vehicles in the evening or on Saturdays. Al Piemonte Ford and their Quick Lane just announced extended service hours. Service will be offered Monday through Friday from 7 am to 9 pm and on Saturday from 7:30 am to 5 pm. The Quick Lane services all vehiclemakes and models.

Additionally, the dealership will begin offering oil changes for $19.95. "With extended service hours and reduced prices like our $19.95 oil change we hope car owners choose us for all their service needs", explained Al Piemonte.

$300,000

That's how much Angus T. Jones, the "half" of "Two and a Half Men," makes per episode, eonline.com reports. Jones, 17, recently inked a new contract that also came with a $500,000 signing bonus. The deal makes him the highest-paid child actor on TV, earning more than stars such as Steve Carell and Jon Hamm.

Polished image

Is there anything Justin Bieber can't—or won't—do? The Canadian singer is introducing a line of nail polish with names linked to his songs, according to AOL's stylelist.com. The line, which will be available at Wal-Mart starting in December, includes hues such as One Less Lonely Glitter (lavender) and OMB! (bright red).

Undoing the 'Dilemma'
Vince Vaughn isn't always funny. Universal Studios has released a new trailer for his upcoming movie "The Dilemma" to remove a scene in which he calls electric cars "gay," according to hollywoodreporter.com. The studio remixed the trailer after GLAAD and Anderson Cooper voiced their complaints about the use of the word as a slur.

Quidditch in 2-D—for now

Harry Potter won't be popping off the screen anytime soon. Warner Bros. announced Friday that it won't be able to complete a 3-D conversion for "Harry Potter and the Deathly Hallows, Part 1" in time for the film's release Nov. 19, thr.com reports. The studio says it still plans to release "Part 2" in both 2-D and 3-D.

Fans like 'Social Network'

Facebook movie "The Social Network" has a lot of friends in movie theaters. The story of the rise of the juggernaut website was No. 1 at the box office for a second straight week, raking in $15.5 million at theaters, according to ew.com. Katherine Heigl's "Life As We Know It" was No. 2 with a so-so debut of $14.6 million.

"I mean, how would I really sound as a person, like walking around my house, you know, [saying, 'Bleep], pick this up?' ... Profanity around my house? No."

—Eminem, talking about how he doesn't swear around his daughters in a "60 Minutes" interview broadcast Sunday
